Krebs argues that two different images of Eastern Europe's ultimate status competed to guide American policy during this period: Finlandization and rollback. Rollback, championed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Central Intelligence Agency, was synonymous with liberation as the public understood it?detaching Eastern Europe from all aspects of Soviet control. Surprisingly, the figure most often linked to liberation?Secretary of State John Foster Dulles ?came to advocated a more subtle and measure policy that neither accepted the status quo nor pursued rollback." 100% customer satisfaction guaranteed.
