In the hearing of all. Oh faithless (unbelieving) generation. Luke adds, and perverse, --perverted, turned aside from the truth. Not merely the disciples (Meyer), nor the scribes (Calvin), nor the father (Chrysostom), nor the people (Olshausen). The expression generation, the contemporary race, is sufficiently wide to comprehend all the persons present. After enjoying fellowship with celestial beings, Jesus suddenly finds himself in a world where unbelief prevails.--Godet. Doubtless the spirit of Jesus was wrung by the contrast, so immortally portrayed in the great picture of Raphael--the Transfiguration--between the scene on the Mount of Glorification and that on the plain below; between the harmonies of heaven and the harsh discords of earth; between the peace and glory which he had left on the mountain, and this scene of weak faith, abject misery, and bitter opposition, --faltering disciples, degraded sufferers, and wrangling scribes.--Cambridge Bible for Schools. How long shall I be with you? Ere the end of my mission be realized.--Morison. Till he had led his disciples to faith. Their slowness troubled him. Bengel. How long shall I suffer you? Bear with you; exercising patience with you in your unbelief. (Compare Exod. 32: 19.) How great the unbelief of the people in view of the time he had been exercising his ministry, and the wonderful miracles he had performed! And his ministry was drawing to a close.--Bible Union Notes. Bring him to me. The language of calm assurance.--Abbott. 20. And when...
